Australian law currently requires all donations to a political party totalling $13,800 or more in a financial year to be declared by both the donor and the recipient. To uphold public transparency of the Party's sources of funding, the names of donors and amounts donated during the previous twelve months are disclosed on our website if the total of their respective donations equals $1,500 or more.

In making this donation you are confirming that:

- you accept that your name and the total amount of your donations during the last 12 months will be included on our public donor list should the donations during this period total $1,500 or more, and
- you have every reason to believe your donation will not give rise to public criticism of the Party's integrity and that our acceptance of the donation will not be contrary to the Party's internal donations policy

The first $1,500 contributed during a financial year, including membership fees, is tax deductible.
